

This form is suitable for members with previous Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS) service currently held in other funds. We will use this form to update your service history, and to investigate any possible transfer of LGPS benefits.

Please note: This form is not suitable for making a request to transfer other pension arrangements into your LGPS pension. If you wish to investigate transferring a non-LGPS pension, see our transfer webpage for more information.

If you have been in your current employment for over 12 months, and your previous LGPS pension ended before 1 April 2014, you will require your employer's permission to investigate the transfer.

I've already drawn my previous pension; do I still need to complete this form?

Yes. We need to know about any previous LGPS service you have even if you have taken your pension, transferred your pension benefits elsewhere or are not interested in transferring. This is because it can impact on how we treat a transfer in of previous LGPS pension benefits, as well as your future pension benefits. Further information is available on our 'combing LGPS pension accounts' web page. If you have deferred pension benefits that you don't want to transfer into your Buckinghamshire pension account, you will have the opportunity to elect to keep these separate.

How do LGPS transfers work?

When you combine LGPS pension benefits from other funds this process is called an 'interfund adjustment'. An interfund adjustment is dealt with differently to other types of transfers. Once we receive your completed form, we'll write to your previous pension fund and ask them for information about your earlier pensions. This will allow us to perform calculations to assess what your earlier pension benefits would be worth if they were combined with your Buckinghamshire pension benefits, compared with the value if they remained separate. We will then write to you, and you will have a time limit to decide whether you wish to combine your pension benefits or keep them separate. The only time that we transfer pension benefits automatically without writing to someone, is when a member's previous service is held as a 'deferred refund' and their earlier membership is less than 2 years in total.

It's your decision.

Our letter will tell you all the things you need to think about to make a decision that is right for you. Although we cannot advise you what to do, if you have any questions about anything contained in the letter, feel free to get in touch. You should of course, seek support from an independent financial advisor where appropriate.

Have you registered for 'my pension online'?

'My pension online' is our self-service portal, allowing you to view your pension record, as well as change and update your personal information. When we write to you about transferring any previous pension, we will publish the letter on your 'my pension online' account, and send you a notification email, advising you that it is ready to view. You can register for 'my pension online' as soon as we have received your starter details from your employer and set your record up. We recommend that you use a personal email address when registering. If you have any problems accessing your online account, please email: mypensiononline@buckinghamshire.gov.uk

What happens if I don't reply?

If you don't reply and your previous pension ended before 1 April 2014, your pension benefits will remain separate, and you will not be able to investigate the transfer again for the same employment. If your previous pension ended after 31 March 2014, and you do not reply, your earlier pension benefits will be combined with your Buckinghamshire pension benefits under the scheme regulations.

Important: If your previous pension started before 1 April 2014, you should be aware that it is not always beneficial to combine your pension benefits. That is why it's very important that you take the time to understand your options and reply to our letter within the timescale.

How long will the transfer take to complete?

We will try to complete the process as quickly as possible, however, it may take some time. This is due in part to the nature of the process itself, but also because we receive a high number of requests. However, you should bear in mind that if you decide to proceed with the interfund adjustment, the delay will not impact adversely on your pension benefits.

What if I have a previous AVC fund?

If you have previously paid into an AVC fund, you should use the appropriate space on the form to inform us about this. We will include your options regarding your AVC fund when we write to you about combining your pension benefits.
